Foreword

Africa is the world's biggest youth reservoir. It has no shortage of talented and highly ambitious young people, or of opportunities for them to study at the university of their dreams. The best universities in the world are showing an increasing amount of interest in students from Sub-Saharan Africa, and the number of scholarships available to help these students finance their studies is also growing fast.

In spite of this, African students are still under-represented in these universities. There are still huge challenges to overcome in gaining admission, for two reasons: the students do not receive adequate preparation at secondary level, and the universities in question have little confidence in the qualifications presented by foreign college graduates. For example, in the United States, which is the country most open to international students, there are only 31,000 students from sub-Saharan Africa out of a total of 900,000 foreign students.

Enko Education has set itself a challenge: to reverse this trend, and improve access to these prestigious universities for students from sub-Saharan Africa, with the aim of helping them to have a significant social and economic impact on their continent. Those who choose to return to their country of origin will benefit from better job opportunities, an improved professional network, and excellent entrepreneurial skills. Those who prefer to stay in the country where they completed their studies will have the opportunity to gain more experience and earn a better salary, and will be able to support their families at home.

We designed the Enko Education schools with this in mind. We offer top-quality international programmes leading to globally recognised qualifications, a university admissions counselling programme to guide our students through the university applications process, and a unique educational experience.

Enko Education offers an international education that is more accessible financially, throughout all of Africa, with the aim of providing its learners with a springboard to the best universities in the world.

● The best international programmes

Enko Education schools offer high-quality international programmes, which are designed to develop our students' abilities and provide them with all the benefits they need to succeed at university and prepare for their working life. Our programmes are recognised internationally and focus on the intellectual, social, emotional and physical wellbeing of our students. They include the final exams and lead to qualifications and diplomas that are recognised and accepted all over the world.

CAMBRIDGE
International Examinations

Learn • Discover • Achieve

Cambridge International Examinations

Designed for young people aged between 5 and 19 years, the Cambridge International Examinations prepare students for their future life, by developing their curiosity and their love of learning.

From primary to pre-university years, the CIE programmes are recognised by the best universities and employers as being an excellent preparation for higher education and working life.

More than 10,000 establishments in 160 countries are part of the Cambridge community.

The International Baccalaureate

The IB programmes are designed for young people aged between 3 and 19 years. These programmes encourage the academic and personal success of the students, while developing their intellectual curiosity, their knowledge capital, their international awareness and determination.

More than 4,000 educational establishments worldwide offer the International Baccalaureate (IB) programmes, which are well-known for their rigorous approach and for promoting students' personal development.

The International Baccalaureate programme is recognised by more than 2,000 universities in 75 countries. Students holding IB diplomas have the highest admission rates to the best universities in the world, and are better prepared to succeed in their higher education.

Our university admissions counselling programme

As a launchpad to the best universities in the world, Enko Education offers a unique programme that provides support to our students in their applications to the university of their choice.

Choosing the right university

Our university admissions counsellors help students to identify the universities and courses that meet their needs in terms of their ambitions and abilities. They guide our learners in their choice of faculty and course, to help them actualise their plans.

Securing admission

Enko Education helps students to fill in their application forms, using its knowledge of the procedures required and its relationships with the admissions managers at the universities. Students receive support in preparing for the tests required by the universities (TOEFL, SAT, etc.).

Financing their studies

Enko Education helps students to identify the scholarships offered by universities and organisations to finance higher education courses and guides them through the process of applying for scholarships.

A unique educational experience

The Enko schools offer students a unique, top-quality educational experience, intended to help their learners develop into students with an open mind, who want to build a better world.

Qualified and accredited staff

The Enko Education schools are IB accredited and/or Cambridge International Examinations schools, or are in the process of becoming so. They follow a rigorous accreditation process, and undergo regular inspection visits. Our establishments are managed by experienced directors, and our teachers, in addition to the initial training provided by IB that is essential for our accreditation, receive an average of one hundred hours of educational training each year.

Multilingual

The Enko Education schools focus on multilingual skills in order to prepare their learners for living and working in a global environment. Depending on the school in question, the International Baccalaureate may be offered in either English or French as a first language (or language A). Many other languages, including Chinese, German, Portuguese and Zulu, may also be offered as a second language (language B).

Access to new technologies

Enko Education promotes a modern education using new technologies. Our students have access to computers, resource centres, and wifi in the classroom. They also benefit from high-quality infrastructure, such as science labs fitted out to international standards.

African and international awareness

Enko Education respects and promotes African cultural diversity at the same time as preparing its learners to live in a global environment and adapt to a world that is constantly changing.

I discovered that my daughter has a strong personality and is comfortable expressing herself confidently in front of an audience, even in English. We must increase these initiatives, because I truly believe that Africa needs more Enko schools to prepare the adults of the future."

Mrs Babong, Mother of Marie-Cécile, DPI student at Enko La Gaieté school in Cameroon

A committed team

Cyrille Nkontchou graduated from Sciences Po and Harvard, and Eric Pignot is a graduate of HEC Paris and MIT.

They created Enko Education to combat the under-representation of sub-Saharan African students in these elite universities. Their vision is to enable talented young people in Africa to realise their potential, by offering them a top-quality international education.

Every member of the team is a graduate of one of the prestigious universities that our learners dream of attending: Sciences Po, MIT, Harvard, HEC Paris, etc.

Our knowledge of the specific features and requirements of these universities is an asset, enabling us to support our students more effectively.

Our heads of school come from all corners of the globe (Canada, France, Germany, United Kingdom, Nigeria and India). All of them have vast international experience in the area of education and have managed prestigious schools before joining Enko Education. They are responsible for teacher training, obtaining IB and Cambridge certificates, and professional development of the staff.

The whole team, both in the schools and at head office, is fully dedicated to carrying out Enko's mission: to provide access to the best universities in the world for more African learners. We work on a daily basis to embody the Enko Education values: to be inquirer, committed, caring, and daring.

How to enrol my child?

Admissions

Enko Education selects its learners based not only on their level of education but also on their level of motivation. Any child who is old enough to join one of our programmes, and who shows that they are motivated to undertake an international education in the best universities in the world, will be eligible for admission to our schools.
