

Letter to International Pre-University College parents

Dear parents,

We are pleased to announce important news for IPC. We are proud of the foundation we have laid since the creation of our institution in 2013. Created with the interest of our students at heart, IPC has provided them with an environment geared towards their success, within modern infrastructure and surrounded by Cambridge accredited and experienced teachers. Today, we want to take a leap forward and entrust the IPC great project to ensure its sustainability and its growth.

In this regard, we chose Enko Education to integrate our institution within its family of schools. Enko Education is a network of African international schools, created in 2014 and now counting 12 schools across Africa. IPC and Enko share the same vision and ambition to prepare students to become citizens of the world through quality international education and specifically through the prestigious Cambridge programme. We are convinced that Enko Education is the best solution to ensure the sustainability of IPC and give it a new impetus. The vision and values of the Enko Education group are in line with what we were seeking.

IPC will become Enko IPC International School. The school will gradually benefit from the advantages of being part of an Africa-wide network: for instance, professional development, teaching workshops across the network or sharing best practices amongst schools.

An email address has been created to answer all your questions and hear your suggestions on this transition: ipc@enkoeducation.com.

With our kindest regards,

Joan Hope-Jones, Jeremy Skeen, Heidi Segeren and Robert Segeren
